ASKING FOR ACCOUNTING.

The News and Observer remarks that it is not taking any sides in the controversy between the Rev. Sidney Love and the Carolina Prisoners Aid attention to it. Society on the one side and the Wake county board of commissioners on the open with regard to the charges sound. brought against him and his society. There is no doubt that such a society is useful when conducted along common-sense lines, but when its agents been anxious to undertake the job. always are looking for a sensation its usefulness must soon end. The grand jury is strictly within its rights in asking for an accounting by the society, which has several agents in the state collecting money. And the society should have no objection-and its officers have declared they have none -to presenting all the data before the jury. A little common sense mixed with the efforts of Rev. Sidney, who is undoubtedly zealous in the cause of reform, would make the path easier Catawba County News.
